

2018 Stonyford Rodeo Dedicated to Barry & Sandy Corbin

Since 1976, when the rodeo was first dedicated to longtime member Bud Fitzgerald who had died that year, the Stonyford Rodeo is dedicated to a person, a couple, or a group who have contributed much to the success of this great rodeo. The dedicatees are also Grand Marshals for Saturday's rodeo parade. For the rodeo's 75th outing, this honor goes to Barry and Sandy Corbin. Barry, who has been an active worker since moving to Stonyford in 2004, is a Glenn County Deputy Sheriff. He chairs the committee that oversees security for the rodeo; he also drives the water truck that sprinkles down the arena before the rodeo and between events. Frequently, he dons his uniform and directly provides security.

Sandy was born and raised in Stonyford, to parents Barney and Babs Cook—themselves long-time workers and past dedicatees (1999). Sandy has been actively involved with the rodeo since serving as Queen in 1979. Over the years, from then until the present, she has competed and served both on committees and as an officer. She was president in 2011-2012 and is currently vice president. Fans know Sandy as the patriotically attired equestrian who carries Old Glory into the arena during the Opening Ceremony, and in the parade.
